

Mrs. Mabel Stickney Who Is Called By Clews an Ideal Woman

New York, Nov. 9.—Miss Mabel Stickney, of Newport, is, according to Henry Clews, Jr., the ideal woman. Henry Clews, Jr., who is an artist of some repute is to immortalize the ideal woman on a sheet of cloth, and Mrs. Stickney, comic opera singer, former wife of a member of the famous Stickney family, of New England, is to be the model for the picture. It is said that Mr. Clews first met Mrs. Stickney by her answering an advertisement for some one to pose as a model. In addition to having grace and figure, the ideal woman, according to the Newport artist's version of the image he is to paint, must be a "se rious minded young woman."

High and Low C

By PERCY SHAW

WHEN you meet a Prima Donna with her singing halo on her head, and a figure so entrancing that you madly beg her hand; To your lawyer quickly hie you, lock the door and sit him by you.

While you state your mighty passion so he can't misunderstand; Tell him real estate and chattel, houses, paintings, clothes and cattle.

You would like to have him mortgage to a friendly mortgagee, So that when your heart you offer, you can safely make the proffer. That all your worldly wealth is hers (as, of course, it ought to be).

Then, as fast as you are able, pop the question on the cable, And when you've been accepted ask like one gone mad with bile; Tell your doubting friends that Cupid may have made you some-what stupid.

But that money is no object in a love profound as this, When the marriage day approaches heap yourself with stern reproaches.

And when her subtle lawyer bids you sign a deed or so, Write your name down without glancing (for a diva who's entrancing).

Would hardly care to see you hesitating over dough.

For a wedding gift what quarter than your chef d'oeuvre as a painter.

Say a jockey in a greenhouse or a tender-eyed giraffe? Something to remind her ever of the ties she cannot sever—

(And as you could not sell it, something bound to make you laugh!) When, at last, she's clothed and fed you, let you lead instead of led you.

Till your honeymoon is over and she coolly asks for bills, Wring your hands and tell her plainly that she's seeking all too vainly—

Then beat it on the quiet for your trans-Atlantic bills.

Tell the papers you adore her, that you'd lay your life down for her.

And if she's half way grateful for devotion so refined, She will praise you, without ceasing, as the canniest, most pleasing

And up-to-date press agent she ever chanced to find.

DR. PEARSON MAY ESTABLISH A PAPER FACTORY IN EL PASO

Dr. F. S. Pearson, the head of the interests which own the Mexico North Western railway, the Madera Lumber company and other industrial interests in the republic of Mexico, may establish a paper factory here. He passed through the city Tuesday night, en route from New York city to visit the properties of the Pearson syndicate in Mexico. In company with George Rutledge, superintendent of the El Paso division of the road, H. C. Ferris, general manager, Mr. Pearson and his party went on a special train to Pearson, the southern terminus of the El Paso division.

The Pearson party is expected to return to El Paso Thursday evening or Friday morning and he will remain in the city several days on his return from Chihuahua and Madera, which places he will visit while in the lower republic.

While in El Paso Mr. Pearson and the other officials will look over sites for the proposed manufacturing plants which will be auxiliary to the big lumber plants at Madera. It is not likely that anything definite will be done, however, until the Mexico North Western connects with the lumber camp at Madera, which will not be until the summer of 1911. The place of location of the auxiliary plants, planing mills, finishing plants and probably a factory for the manufacture of wood pulp of paper,
